Attention: Dr. Maria Iannone

Dear Dr. Iannone:

We recently sent Mitzie to The Dog Training Company for a residency program where the trainer utilized a remote training collar to teach her to follow commands. We were somewhat worried that she would be a problem for training due to her shyness, but our worries were laid to rest when we picked her up. She not only follows her commands, but seems very happy to do so.

Mitzie's trainer, Ron Nober, has a genuine, easy way with dogs, and Mitzie seems to love him. The training director, Susan Engel, e-mailed us and sent pictures of Mitzie while we were away on a cruise, which made us feel so much better knowing she was happy and well taken care of, not to mention learning how to behave.

I know you are in a position to recommend training programs for your patients, and I thought you would appreciate our sharing our experience with you. We would be happy to be a reference to any of your patients' owners.

Ron and Susan have a web site: www.TheDogTrainingCompany.com, and their phone number is 609-859-5555.

As we discussed, I have asked Susan to send you some brochures explaining the various training programs they offer. It is amazing how these dogs respond to their methods no matter what age they are when entering the program.

Sincerely,

Maria and Harry (and Mitzie)
