

To whom it may concern,

I have had a close working relationship with The Dog Training Company and Susan Engel since she began her company. She acquired an excellent training background from structured training school settings; she always has been a true animal lover, and philosophically feels that dogs can learn without being physically intimidated.

The clients I have referred are always happy with both Susan and her results. Her use of the remote training collar is very effective. I have personally used the collar and find that it is a gentle, humane way to get the dog's attention, and not a painful deterrent. It assists dogs in learning quickly, and becoming well behaved members of their families.

Sincerely,
